“Mutt”: A 30-minute Action/Drama Short Film
South San Francisco Conference Center

SAN FRANCISCO, CA, NOVEMBER 7, 2010

“Mutt”, is a 30-minute action/drama short film production collaboration between Mind.Erase.Media and Doubletter Productions. The film will premiere its first screening on Friday, November 12 at the South San Francisco Center at 9pm! “Mutt” takes a new direction in action/drama short filmmaking blending character drama and professionally choreographed action sequences.

The film’s plot involves...Trish, a former correctional officer, is in possession of evidence that could expose the corruption of the prison system. In pursuit is Sid, a corrupt prison guard, who is hell bent on regaining the valuable goods. And, with the aid of his goon Paul, murder may be Sid's best solution. Conflict ensues in which they encounter someone or something else that will challenge their sides of being good & evil.

“Mutt” utilizes both professional stunt persons and actors within a shorter film narrative giving the experience to the audience a story-quality equivalent of larger budget films. The film is directed by Stan Hom, whose experience includes action character designs for LucasArt’s “Star Wars: Force Unleashed” series. The film was shot by Leonardo De Asis, Jr. of Doubletter Productions, whose experiences include other films, music videos, and documentaries which adds to the visual kinetic energy of “Mutt”.And, was co-written with Ray Hom, whose first film “Hubris” was screened at various film festivals last year and shown on local television. “In this day of the digital age, filmmakers must create movies that are engaging and entertaining for audience members who are also seeking quality story-telling,” says Michael Calonsag, the Executive Producer of the film. “Mutt” stars Michelle Monge, Joe Canose, Ace Miles, and Bo Campbell.
